Henriksen Jet Center at Austin Executive Airport (KEDC) joins Paragon Aviation Group

Houston, TX--Paragon Aviation Group is pleased to announce the addition of Henriksen Jet Center (KEDC) in Austin, Texas to its quickly growing roster of elite FBOs. Henriksen Jet Center and Austin Executive Airport are owned by Mr. Ron Henriksen.

Uniquely positioned as a gateway to Austin, Austin Executive Airport is the newest business aviation airport in the country. They are located 15 minutes from downtown Austin and only a quick eight minutes from Dell and Samsung Campuses. From their exceptional customer service to their 18,000 sq. ft. arrival canopy, they have the perfect amenities to keep every visitor cool and comfortable in the hot Texas sun.

"We are so thrilled to become a part of Paragon's network of FBOs," Andrew Perry, Executive Director, said. "Henriksen Jet Center looks forward to networking and growing our business with other Paragon locations."

Like many other Paragon members, Henriksen Jet Center is open 24 hours and features luxury amenities including theater room, a VIP passenger lounge and an exquisite atrium style lobby.

"Henriksen Jet Center is a valued addition to our group and the perfect gateway for anyone flying into Austin, Texas," President Mike Delk said. "We look forward to working with them and helping them grow their business through Paragon's network of FBOs."

Paragon Aviation Group is the fastest growing network of elite, independent FBOs in North America. Through its commitment to customer-focused service, quality, safety, reliability and value Paragon delivers tangible benefits to its members, based tenants and transient customers. Each FBO joining Paragon Aviation Group goes through a comprehensive audit of facility and services offered to ensure the quality of
